Potsdam Declaration On Economic Unification
Must Be Upheld(This is the sixth and last in a series of penetrating articles on conditions in Germany culled from an official report to OMGUS made by M. S. Szymczak, former city controller of Chicago and until recently economic chief of OMGUS.)By M. S. SZYMCHAK (Member of the Board of Governors of the U. S. Federal Reserve System) (Distributed by I. N. S.)BERLIN, Aug. 4.—(INS)—All economic achievements of U. S. military government in Germany are merely the first step on the road to rehabilitation. The obstacles that still have to be overcome are, no doubt, as great as any which we have encountered so far.First of all, the provision of the Potsdam declaration which calls for the economic unification of Germany must be carried out.Unification in itself will not solve the economic problems of Germany, but it will ensure the development of the whole German economy on a more rational basis.Uncertainty as to economic unification is a handicap in many fields, notable in adjusting the so-called level-of-industry plan to changed conditions.Under that plan which was approved by all four occupying powers one year ago, maximum levels were established for most German industries with a view particularly to preventing the resurgence of German war potential.Most experts agree that this plan needs substantial corrections, but the necessary amendments in each zone will largely depend upon developments in other zones and upon the question of whether the German economy is to be developed as a unit or in separate self-sufficient parts.Another problem that urgently needs attention is currency reform.
The disproportion between the supply of money and of goods at prevailing prices cannot be maintained indefinitely. All experts agree that a reduction in the volume of currency will be necessary.Obviously, the execution of such a reform also depends upon the fate

A SUMMARY OF THE NEWS

Both sides in the Indonesian conflict acceded yesterday to the United Nations' request for a prompt truce.
The Dutch issued a cease-fire order effective at midnight tonight. The Indonesian Republic's acceptance appeared to be less explicit; it sought to establish conditions for mediation.The news was received with enthusiasm at the United Nations as a step in enhancing the organization's prestige. Some observers pointed out that the Security Council had moved with equal vigor in the Greek border dispute, but a Soviet veto had prevented action there.Under-Secretary of State Clayton will confer in Paris today with United States diplomats on means of supporting the weakened economy of many European nations to tide them over until the Marshall Plan becomes operative. British and French officials were reported considering a European customs union and Britain's role in it.When Prime Minister Attlee reports to the Commons Wednesday on Britain's economic crisis, it is believed he will ask for postponement of plans to nationalize basic industries and for power to freeze labor in essential jobs.

THE GREAT GAME
OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

Third-Party Bluff

Washington, Aug. 4. A GREAT deal of silly stuff is being written these days about a third party in 1948. Most of it centers about that woolly-minded, whirling dervish of politics, Mr. Henry Wallace. There will be more of it before, during and after the next speech-making tour which he is now planning for the early fall.THE basic reason for this is the fact, perfectly clear to the more astute promoters of Mr. Wallace, that unless constantly nourished by fresh publicity their garrulous little hero is likely to shrivel right up and drop off the vine. One group of his press supporters now tells us

Improvement in Drivers If Schools Taught Driving

CO-OPERATION NOTED

If we could get all the high schools in the country to offer driver education to all students before graduation, in a few years we could have an improved crop of drivers on the highways. These trained drivers would be far more skillful than their elders, better informed, and have better attitudes with regard to safe driving practices and regulations. What has been done by some states and communities can readily be done by all.During the past year more than 5,000 high schools, about one fourth of the public high schools of the nation, have had some type of driver education, and the number of schools offering this instruction is steadily increasing. There is clear evidence that this instruction improves the driving performance of youngsters. In one state, Wisconsin, where more than 80 per cent of the schools have been offering driver education, there has been a gratifying improvement in the accident record, in driver attitudes, and in the driver violations by the younger operators. Other states and cities where a large percentage of schools are giving instruction show a similar improvement.According to the report of the President's highway safety conference, "a sound, comprehensive traffic-safety program can prepare the youngster to take his place in traffic as an intelligent and skillful driver, bicyclist, and pedestrian." Just as it is necessary to train good teams in high school sports, skilled workmen in shops and good musicians in school orchestras, it is even more important to train youngsters to be good drivers.The secondary school year, during which students reach legal driving age, are most suitable for training drivers. This training becomes an excellent preparation for the driver's license examination. At the present time the driver licensing bureaus in some 15 states award

HOW TO CHOOSE A CONGRESSMAN

There's a sign in the front window of Bucks and Lehigh Counties.It reads: "Man wanted."
The job to be filled is that of Congressman for the Eighth District. A vacancy was caused when the incumbent, Charles L.
Gerlach, died last May 5.A new Congressman, to serve out the rest of the term until the end of next year, will be named at a special election September 9.There are two applicants for the job. The Republican candidate is Franklin H. Lichtenwalter, and the man running on the Democratic ticket is Philip H. Storch.HOW DOES A VOTER GO ABOUT CHOOSING BE-TWEEN THEM?Much the same way as the individual man or woman would go about hiring a person for any other job.If you were about to employ a maid, for instance, or hire a man to take care of the garden, or pick an assistant at your regular job, what would you do? You'd ask about the record and background of the applicants, you'd look at their references, you'd "size them up," and then you'd choose the one whose qualifications best fitted into the requirements of the job.There is little difference in making up your mind which way to vote on September 9. (Don't be confused because the election is being held at the same time as the Fall Primaries. It has nothing to do with these primaries. If you are a registered voter, you can vote for either of the candidates, regardless of whether you are recorded as Republican, Democratic or non-partisan.)The men and women of this District are the boss in this election. The job of hiring a Congressman is up to them. That's the cornerstone of our form of government—"representative republican" democracy.They can listen to advice, if they want to; and they are getting a lot of it. Some comes from as far as Michigan and Moscow.
But they don't have to follow that advice, or any other.They are the boss. The man they choose will be supposed to work for them—to be their "public servant." It's up to them to pick the best man for the job. The better choice they make, the better results they will get. And of course they would be very foolish to pick a man who was going to work for somebody else instead of the voters of this district.

COUPLE IN SEVENTIES

DOYLESTOWN, Aug. 4.—Indications, according to Clerk of Orphans' Court Leonora H. Leattor, of Riegelsville, prove that July, one of the hottest months of the year, is a slow month in the marriage license business. From the records it was discovered that this year's July total exceeds the number of license granted in the same month of the past seven years.More than 25 per cent of the applicants granted marriage licenses in July in the office of the Clerk of Orphans' Court, here, were residents of Philadelphia. Many others came from nearby New Jersey and New York. Two came from Texas and California. During the month, 124 couples applied for licenses, an increase of 15 couples over last July's total.Among the July brides was a 73 year old bride, who was twice divorced. Her third husband, who was a widower, was 77 years old.
Both were residents of Blooming-Glen.One of the most interesting applications was received from a 43 year old local man, who desired to wed his 49 year old bride from

STORY OF A LAWBREAKER

This reckless driver and his companion were speeding crazily through a thickly populated residential area, endangering the lives of dozens of people. Fortunately their wild ride ended before they had involved anyone else. The car went out of control on a medium curve and slammed into a gasoline pump, hurling its occupants onto the pavement. The driver was killed; his passenger lived—after many months in the hospital. Speeding was a reported violation in one out of every four motor vehicle fatalities last year. Strict enforcement of speed laws and aroused public opinion are needed to prevent accidents of this type.

"GUMMING"

The report that the Mexican States are concerned over the use of synthetic products for the natural chicle in chewing gum, fails to arouse the average gum user in the United States.

One ponders the question of how much energy the average person expends in his quest for chewing satisfaction—or is it perpetual motion.

The rhythmic movements of mastication may cause the physicist to experiment indefinitely, while the relationship between the rapidity of chewing and the emotions would be a difficult job for the best psychologist. Probably the chemist could assist by discovering a gum that would dissolve as it hits the sidewalk.

Observe the antics in the classroom, at the movies, on the street or in the shop and realize there is no standard operating procedure for "gumming." Methods vary according to individual jaws and personalities. The mental processes do not play a part unless it is necessary to scheme and connive to purchase the product.

The Mexicans may worry about the future of natural chicle but the average American will continue his harmless habit in a thoughtless manner.

BACK TO THE CURVE!

Here is a cheering forecast for high school seniors who have been worrying about their chances of going to college after graduation. Most of them, according to a study just completed at New York University, will have no trouble entering college in September, 1948.

This is the prediction made by Dr. Rufus D. Smith, provost of New York University and Prof. Ray F. Harvey of his staff. They have concluded that the registration peak will be passed during the coming academic year and that, thereafter, the range of choice for college entrance will steadily widen. They disagree flatly with the "false optimists" who expect a permanent increase in college population like the one that followed World War I.

And it looks as though they are probably right. For they have taken into consideration certain factors that other prognosticators seem to have overlooked, among them the low birth-rate of the '30s and the fact that the decline in immigration after 1924 materially cut down population growth. They expect the pre-war curve will make itself felt when the number of veterans seeking a college education falls, and that seems to be a reasonable expectation.

The curve has been disrupted by the war, but the professors seem to be justified in their belief that the number of college-trained people the economic system can absorb is limited. That being so, the incentive to go to college will be less as opportunities are filled. So, in due course, those who most want a college education will find it less hard to get it. Once they have it, of course, they will have to solve the problem of putting it to use—but that has always been true.

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol, July 23, 1896. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

A sad accident occurred on the Delaware River on Tuesday night, which resulted in the drowning of Miss Bessie Kane, of Beverly, N. J., and Mr. Leo Horner, of Burlington, N. J., both young people prominent in social circles. The two people had been on a trip in a boat down the river and on returning had evidently sought to cross ahead of the Steamer "Florence" which was coming down the river with a party of excursionists on board. The "Florence" struck the boat, and hurled Mr. Horner, who was at the oars, a considerable distance in the air, his body falling in the water and sinking immediately. Miss Kane was thrown out of the boat and was seen to float beneath the paddle wheels of the steamer. The "Florence" was stopped and search made for the victims, when it was found that all hope was gone she proceeded on her way. It was not until this morning that the body of Leo Horner was found near the place where the accident occurred. The body of the young lady has not yet been recovered.

The Fourth Ward Hose Company had a pole raising on last Saturday evening, in front of the hose house. The first attempt at raising the pole was not successful, the shear pole broke and delayed operations for awhile. By eight o'clock the task was successfully accomplished and the stars and stripes unfurled to the breeze amid the firing of cannon and a mighty shouting from the Fourth Ward multitude. The pole is 63 feet above ground.

Eight carloads of rails and two cars of ties arrived Monday for the new trolley line.

The large shear pole to be used in erecting the new standpipe arrived last Monday.

On Sunday morning, while William Reardon, who lives near the "two-mile lock" on the canal above Bristol, was dozing in front of his house he was aroused by the noise of a flock of birds passing overhead. They appeared to be wild geese, and Reardon watched them with interest. He was thrown into a state of delightful excitement by seeing the birds suddenly stop and flutter down upon the placid surface of the canal. Reardon quickly got his gun, and crept along the canal bank until he got within fair range. Then he fired both barrels into the top of the water. It was not until he went to gather his game that Reardon found the birds were not geese, but beautiful white cranes, averaging from three to four feet from tip to tip of the wings. This was the largest flock of this species ever seen in this locality.

During the storm on Tuesday night the barn of Hugh B. Webster, in Hulmeville, was struck by lightning, and with its contents destroyed. The loss on the barn was about $500. Its contents consisted of hay, wheat, three wagons, tools and implements. The hay was insured for $200.

The Neshauney bridge at Croydon is being torn away and will be replaced by a new structure to be built by the county and trolley company.

Last Saturday afternoon, one of the jolliest sailing parties and picnics of the season left Bristol in the sailing yachts "Heien" and "Phoenix." After sailing up the river as far as Point Manor, the party landed at Collins' wharf. Those who enjoyed the occasion were: Mrs. Stacey Pursell, Misses Maria Jarvis, Elsie McIntosh, Helen Scott, Mabel Hawke, Helen Hawke, Bessie Beatty, Esther Beatty, Helen Gilkeson, Ethel Gilkeson, Anna Jarvis, Hallie Jarvis, Drs. William Comstock and Charles Abbott, Messrs. R. F. Harned, B. Frank Gilkeson, Jr., George C. Hughes, Malcolm Lovett, Howard I. James, Thomas Scott, Jesse O. Thomas, Jr., Lardner V. Morris, Armand Morris, Morris Dorrance, Jr., Stanford Runyan.

The residence of the Sisters who conduct the St. Mark's parochial school was damaged by a tree falling against it, breaking in a window. The chimneys were also blown down.

It would be silly, for instance, for the men and women of these two counties to name a man who wouldn't represent them in Congress, but spend all his time working for persons who don't even live in Pennsylvania!

There is a very simple way to describe the relationship between the voters and the national government, including Congress. That is to compare it to a business corporation.

The men and women of the Eighth Congressional District are stockholders in the biggest business concern in the world—the United States Government.

Congress is the Board of Directors.

What Congress does affects the jobs, the earnings, the savings and the opportunities of every man, woman and child.

This is especially true of the House of Representatives, which is the "money" branch of Congress where tax bills must originate. The rest of the national government can be forced to economize if the Congressmen refuse to appropriate money to be wasted; and on the other hand, Congress can have the whole country to the poorhouse if it fails to reduce taxes when the nation is tax-poor.

Bucks and Lehigh counties are large, thickly settled counties, with varied interests. They have many chips in the game. They are especially "wide open" to harm done by rash, incompetent or non-cooperative Congressmen. The need is especially great for a Representative who will seriously weigh all the questions coming before him on the basis of what will hurt and what will help all the people who live in this district.

These two counties have large industrial centers, with big factories, mills and other kinds of plants. These areas have thousands of working people, some belonging to unions and some non-union. Both these groups are entitled to representation in Congress. So are the "small business men" in such areas whose livings depend on large and regular payrolls at these plants. And so are the hundreds of persons, both men and women, who have taken their savings and invested them in the securities of these industrial concerns.

Both these counties have big farming interests. Bucks county, for instance, is one of the biggest poultry-and-egg producers in the country. It has many other important agricultural lines. Thousands of acres are divided into a few large and hundreds of smaller farms. The same is true of Lehigh County, which is perhaps best known as a fruit producer, but which raises hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of other farm goods.

There are many other lines of activity in the two counties, and many other interests. All of these—and not just one or two—are clearly entitled to be represented on the floor of Congress. All of them have great interest in the ability and intentions of the Congressmen to be elected September 9.

The work which Congress does—law-making—is a complicated task under our form of government. That is true because of many factors, the biggest of which is that Congress tries to hear all sides of a story before acting; law-making is simple under a dictatorship!

Because the job is a complicated one, experience is necessary before a Congressman can do full justice to the men and women of his district. A new Congressman is called a "freshman," and it is rare that he can do much in his first term of office.

But sometimes it happens that a man has had great experience in law-making before he is elected to Congress. This is the case with the Republican candidate this year. Mr. Lichtenwalter has served since 1938 in the Pennsylvania Legislature, which is the State's equivalent of Congress. His ability and leadership led to his being named Majority Floor Leader in 1943, and Speaker of the House last January.

His opponent has been a reporter and publicity agent as his life work, and has no experience with the specialized work of the job in Congress for which he is running.

Where do the political parties come in?

That's simple. When you talk to a man who is applying for a job, one of the things you ask him is: "What are your references?"

A candidate's political party is, in a sense, his "reference." Now, when you look at someone's references, certain things enter your mind. One is the standing of those who wrote the letters, and another is whether they are people you know.

Mr. Lichtenwalter's political references come from this District, except as his services for his constituents has brought him to the favorable attention of leaders in the State Administration and in State Republican circles. He was the unanimous choice of the committees representing the Bucks and Lehigh County Republican committees.

As for the Republican Party's standing, this is the Party which guided the destinies of this nation during its periods of greatest growth and expansion—which paid off the debts of two great and costly wars; which liberated the working man and fathered the labor movement; and which brought American standards of living to the highest ever known anywhere in the world.

The nation is begging for the stage to be set for a repetition of that job of rebuilding and revitalizing during the next few years, under Republican leadership.

As to the references of Mr. Storch, the most conspicuous of these come from figures who don't live in either of the two districts—who never have, and who never expect to. Unlike the Republican sponsors of Mr. Lichtenwalter, who are men who live in the county, whom you may meet on the street tomorrow, and whom you can look up and visit any time you wish, Mr. Storch's principal sponsors are from many miles away.

As a matter of fact, Mr. Storch doesn't even represent the whole of a political party—he is sponsored by the radical king of the Democratic Party, and is basically just as opposed to the old-line or Jeffersonian wing as he is to the Republicans. This is proven by the fact that he is seeking to make opposition to the Taft-Hartley Labor Bill the principal issue of this campaign, although that bill was supported in Congress by more members of the Democratic Party to which he claims adherence than by Democrats who oppose it.

Let's read the tallysheet, and see which way these points indicate you should vote:

Lichtenwalter has wide experience in law-making, and has demonstrated his aptitude and ability in this field; Mr. Storch has no such experience, and would enter Congress as a "freshman."

Mr. Lichtenwalter has the solid backing of the Republican Party organizations in the two counties of the district. He was nominated by men who are his friends and neighbors; just as they are yours. Mr. Storch's sponsors belong to the radical, anti-Jeffersonian and pro-Socialist wing of the Democratic Party—and the most noisy of his sponsors come from miles away.

Mr. Lichtenwalter belongs to a political faith which gave this nation most of the sound growth and enrichment it has ever known, and which solved in the past problems just as pressing as those of today, without plunging into world war. Mr. Storch is ardently backed by a radical fringe which is bent on overthrowing Constitutional government and setting up a labor dictatorship.

The moral is simple:
VOTE REPUBLICAN ON SEPTEMBER 9!

The Great Game of Politics

that the PCA (Progressive Citizens of America), which is the left-wing element that does not bar Communists, already is "making arrangements" to overcome the state obstacles to placing Mr. Wallace's name on the 1948 ballot. Another group asserts that, under direct orders from Moscow, the Communist organization in this country is the real force behind his candidacy. There is some plausibility in this, but not much.

IT IS charged that Mr. Wallace's first tour was ardently furthered by the easily recognized Communist CIO leaders in every city he visited. These, it is claimed, supplied a large part of his audience, a considerable part of the cash and most of the enthusiasm. Without their wholehearted cooperation the tour would have flopped. To what extent this is true is a matter of opinion, but certainly the Communists everywhere are solidly with Mr. Wallace, anxious to build him up. As he is the most conspicuous assailant of the American foreign policy and the ardent champion of the Russian point of view, it would be strange, indeed, if this were not so.

HOWEVER, despite the propaganda proclamations, none of this means that either the Communists, the CIO politicians or Mr. Wallace are committed to a third-party movement, seriously contemplating forming one or have taken real steps toward one. Perhaps the most puerile statement along these lines yet put out is the one that ascribes to the Communist leaders a sinister and subtle decision to promote the independent Wallace candidacy with the idea of insuring the nomination and election of a "stodgy" (favorite word of the more lurid "liberal" writers) Republican reactionary—preferably Bricker—for President next year, thereby making sure a radical revolution in 1952.

THERE ARE so many reasons all this is absurd that it is difficult to find space to enumerate. Most of them should be clear to any unflinching mind. For one thing, Senator Bricker, or any one of Senator Bricker's essential "stodginess," has so little chance of being nominated by the Republican convention that it is not worth discussing. For another, the Communists and their CIO friends long ago reached the conclusion that there was no nourishment whatever for them in a third party and the only way to promote their goal of economic chaos was to work within one of the two major parties. Early in the New Deal they chose the Democratic party.

FOR thirteen years they have been registering and voting Democratic. They still are—and they will be in 1948. The third-party talk is a bluff. They do not want a third party for obvious reasons. So far as the Communists are concerned, one is that it would altogether undo the work and nullify all the propaganda and training since 1933. Another is that in a country which, for a number of excellent reasons has grown steadily more anti-Communist in the last two years, to sponsor and identify themselves with a third party next year would be to exhibit their numerical impotence. This is a thing they go to great lengths to conceal. Another reason is that for the Communists to go third party with Mr. Wallace would be to break away from the CIO leaders who, now that Mr. Truman has vetoed the Taft-Hartley labor bill, certainly are not going to follow Mr. Wallace solely on his foreign-policy views, with which they have no sympathy.

THE truth is that with Mr. Truman having cast his lot on the side of the labor bosses and yielded to the Hannegans, Sullivan and Cliffords, who, ignoring the lessons of the 1946 elections, insist upon clinging to the now disintegrating political alliances of the late Mr. Roosevelt, there is obviously nothing for any of the so-called "liberal groups" in a Wallace movement. Most of them know this very well. Mr. Wallace puts on a good show and gets a lot of publicity. It does not seem to be doing his magazine a great deal of good and it really is not doing him any good.

FOR his is essentially a hollow performance. He has gathered about him as curious a crowd of crackpots and phonies as there is in the country. They make much noise, but they are unimportant politically as in other ways. He and they may succeed in scaring the easily scared Hannegans, Sullivan and Cliffords into going to "liberal" extremes in the convention platform, but it is unlikely that he will have more than a negligible number of delegates there. Experienced politicians regard the Wallace third-party forecasts as a joke. With the new and unchallenged facts which Mr. Westbrook Pegler has recently produced concerning his intimate connections with the crystal-gazing cult in New York and his undepicted authorship of what are called the Guru letters, they believe that Mr. Wallace is rapidly becoming a comic character.

Achievements in German Economy Merely First Step

of unification. If common action of all four occupying powers is not forthcoming, the advantages and disadvantages of separate action in the merged American and British zones must be weighed.

Other problems arise in connection with the political aims of occupation. The decentralization of the German economy must be achieved in order to make it impossible for the country to reorganize for aggressive purposes.

In this connection, military government in the American zone has enacted a drastic decentralization statute, which is aimed at destroying the concentration of economic power in German industry.

Property of Allied nations looted during the war has been and is being restituted. War plants have been and are being destroyed and other plants have been and are being removed for reparations.

The over-all problem of reparations, however, still remains to be solved.

The lack of unified action of the four occupying powers, moreover, creates uncertainties that are detrimental to economic progress.

As long as the management of an enterprise does not know whether or not a plant be subject to restitution, or to destruction, or to removal under the reparations program, it cannot make definite plans for reconstruction or start an investment program which might be interrupted at any moment.

Finally, military government has to deal with the problem of reaching equilibrium in the balance of international payments of the merged American and British zones.

In this connection, the question of economic unification again becomes decisive. As long as unification is not achieved, international trade must be treated as international rather than domestic commerce, with the resulting need for controlling international payments.

The problem of equilibrium is particularly interesting to the American public. As long as the proceeds from exports do not exceed import requirements, they must be devoted entirely to paying for current imports.

Only when an export surplus is reached will it be possible for our merged zones to start repaying the advances made by the occupying powers for the importation of basic necessities.

Our stake in the economic problems of Germany, however, is greater than our interest in receiving repayment of our advances. We want peace, and we know in order to have peace, we must have economic stability in Germany and in the rest of Europe.

Turn In Used Cooking Fats!

ask MARY MARGARET McBRIDE Famous Radio Commentator

One of the finest jobs ever done by American housewives has been in saving used fats! Since 1942, over 800 million pounds have been salvaged. But, as Secretary of Commerce W. A. Harriman points out, the job still isn't over. "Not only the United States, but the whole world still lacks adequate supplies of fats and oils. And we in America are particularly short of industrial fats, or their products, are needed to make many things we use every day. The used fats you turn in will help tide us over until supplies are normal."

BUCKS COUNTIAN IS "PRODUCER" OF BELLS

Barely Audible Sounds Are Picked Up and Amplified; Termed "Carilonic"

BRINGS COST DOWN

SELLERSVILLE, Aug. 4—A local producer of electronic church bells, or as he prefers to term them "carilonic," George Schulmerich, has been given publicity in a nationally-known magazine.

Schulmerich, president of the Electronics, Inc., firm which bears his name, began experimenting with bells in 1929 when the newly formed Schulmerich Sounds System was building amplifying equipment for churches.

The trouble with bells has always been the prohibitive cost. A carillon or set of bells costs a minimum of $35,000 to install and trained bell ringers must play them. Most churches go bell-less or chime-less because of the cost.

Schulmerich's idea was to strike three-one-one pieces of bell metal with miniature hammers, pick up their barely audible bell sounds and amplify them 100,000 times or more.

The resulting tones are similar to those of cast bells. The mechanism is controlled by a small keyboard that can be incorporated into an organ console. The range of sound varies from loud (one mile) to overwhelming (22 miles).

Because Schulmerich dislikes the label, "electronic," for bells whose sound has a natural source (that is, only the amplification is electronic), he has copyrighted a new word, carilonic.

Among the places where tolling carillons operate are in Father Flanagan's Boys' Town and the Oldsmobile Building in Lansing, Michigan, where a set plays "In My Merry Oldsmobile."

There are more than 800 installations now in use.

Education Is Needed To Stop Accidents

certificates to students who have completed an approved driver education course, and waive a part of the complete license test.

The driver-education course should consist of at least 30 periods of classroom work, followed, if possible, by behind-the-wheel training. Because of the lack of cars, some states are recommending a "home supervision plan," securing the aid of the parents in behind-the-wheel training. Where the school offers systematic road instruction, accidents are materially reduced. A study of 3,200 students in one city showed half as many accidents for those with driver instruction as for those without.

The President's conference looks to the schools for help in this national problem of highway safety. There are certain clear responsibilities of school superintendents and principals. They should work for adequate public assistance and support by informing the community about the aims, nature and scope of the school traffic-safety problem. Also, according to the conference, they should "immediately determine adequacy of the instructional program and make plans for driver instruction as near to the legal driving age as is practicable. In addition, they should provide this instruction whenever possible as a service during the summer, at night sessions, and for adults."

In a nationwide survey reaching thousands of people, the Opinion Research Corporation not only found that 78 per cent "were in favor of driver instruction in the high schools, but 69 per cent favored actual road instruction." It is quite important to see to it that youngsters learn good driving as to run a lathe, solve problems in mathematics, or learn foreign languages. Schools have found it important not only to teach the rules of the road, sound driving practices and certain units on the mechanics of the car and preventive maintenance, but also to stress psychophysical skills and good driving attitudes. This instruction includes visits to inspection stations, traffic courts, and garages. There are some excellent movie films for visual aid available which are being used widely by the schools.

Driver education has been approved and recommended by school administrators of the National Education Association and by officials of more than 80 organizations that make up the National Committee for Traffic Safety. It has been clearly demonstrated that traffic safety education produces real results in the reduction of child accidents. What is needed now is to have all states and communities move ahead with the preparation of young people for their responsibilities as motorists.

SIX OF EIGHT TEAMS ARE IN TIGHT POSITIONS

Church League Becomes A Close Race With Teams Evenly Matched

CALVARY NOW LEADS

St. Luke's and Cornwells Are Following Very Closely

Six out of eight teams are jammed in "flat-foot" ties for various positions as the teams thundered down the home stretch of the closing weeks of activity in the Lower Bucks County Church Softball League. Only Calvary (in first place) and Eddington-Newportville (in last place) held their respective berths undisputedly.

In between those two clubs the rest of the league is vying for a better position in the final standings than their present tie-status shows.

St. Luke's and Cornwells are in a flat tie for second place with identical records of 14-and-8; Bensalem and Presbyterian are battling it out for fourth place, each having a like record of 13-and-10; while First Baptist and Church of Our Saviour have the same won-lost record of 7-and-16 to tie for sixth place.

Cornwells jumped into a tie with St. Luke's, though they didn't play a game during the past week. They annexed a 7-0 forfeited verdict from Eddington-Newportville when the latter failed to put a team on the field. Meantime, St. Luke's fell miserably before Presbyterian, 17-6. But they came back to win a pair later in the week, also gaining a forfeit over Eddington-Newport, 7-0; and then whipping First Baptist on the playing field, 15-7.

Meantime, Calvary chalked up two decisions, winning over First Baptist, 12-9; and Church of Our Saviour, 13-7. First Baptist racked up five runs in the first inning, but Calvary matched that total on six hits, including doubles by Elwood Dyer and Walt Tomlinson. Both teams scored one in the third, and First Baptist went ahead for the third time with one in the fourth. But Elwood Dyer's triple with two on put Calvary out in front to stay. Five runs in the last inning broke up a tight game to clinch the verdict for Calvary over Church of Our Saviour, who trailed by only one run, 8-7, up to the 7th. Five hits, a hit batter and two fielder's choices produced the runs.

Bensalem and Bristol Presbyterian each scored a pair of victories to keep pace with each other. Bensalem easily outscored Church of Our Saviour, 8-1, clinching the verdict with a four-run outburst in the first inning. Oliver Cliver held the opposition to a measly three hits and had a shut-out 'til the last inning. In the other game Bensalem gained a 7-0 forfeit over Eddington-Newportville.

Presbyterian won its two games handily, walloping St. Luke's, 17-6; and then trouncing First Baptist, 11-6, to run its victory string to four straight. In trouncing St. Luke's, Johnny Jones got his team off to an early start with a home run in the first inning with one on to erase a 1-0 deficit. St. Luke's tied it at 2-2 in the second, but Presbyterian counted three more in their turn to go ahead to stay. They put the game out of reach for St. Luke's with six runs in the fourth when Elmer Vetter hit a bases-full homer. Bucky Walters also hit for the circuit for Presbyterian. Against First Baptist, Presbyterian opened up with a six-run rally in the initial frame and had a 10-0 lead before First Baptist scored a run. Johnny Jones again pitched and batted his team to victory with 4-for-4, which coupled with his 3-for-5 night against St. Luke's gave him 7-for-9 for the two games.

St. Luke's scored an easy decision over First Baptist, 15-7, with a five-run rally in the fourth sending the verdict. Freddy Bartholomew, Walby Wurthman, and Jim Lamb, each with three hits, paced the victors' 17-hit attack, while Freddie Stewart had three hits for the losers.

ST. ANN'S ADDS MORE LAURELS TO BASEBALL RECORD

Croydon Vets Lose Closely Fought Game by Score of 6 to 5

WINNERS OUTHIT

Keegan Twirled the Entire Game and Was Hit Freely

St. Ann's A. A. added more laurels to its baseball record yesterday afternoon when it scored a close win over the Croydon Vets on the Maple Beach diamond before a large crowd. Final score was 6-5 with the "Vets" having the tying run on base when the final out was made.

The Vets outhit the winners by the wide margin of 14-6. But of the six St. Ann's hits, four came in the second inning when five tallies were made and another came in the eighth inning when the Wood Streets pushed over the winning marker. The Croydon team had 11 runners left on base while St. Ann's had four. "Danny" Keegan twirled the entire nine innings for St. Ann's and although hit freely was backed by fine support. Most of the Croydon hits were well-placed, just out of reach of St. Ann's players. Keegan's southpaw pitching caused six Croydonites to go down on strikes.

In an effort to stem the flow of St. Ann's runs, Manager Harry Bau-roth had a parade of four pitchers and after "Herm" Piuma was knocked out in the second his strategy worked well as he put in the slow ball pitcher, Neal McCartney and then changed to the fast baller, Sal Pappaterra. Pappaterra developed a sore arm in the eighth and Dick finished. Piuma was the losing hurler.

Croydon Vets defeated the Philadelphia Quakers, 5-0, on Friday night.
